Want to go on a Virtual Tour of a Museum with your kids? Google Arts & Culture to gain access to favorite destinations with a click of a mouse. An afternoon or night at the museum is possible, even amid these strange times. Happy museum-hopping and stay safe:

- American Museum of Natural History
Home to our favorite dinosaur activities for kids, AMNH offers a virtual glimpse at the pre-historic creatures, mammals, insects and plenty other beloved areas of its Upper West Side digs. Be sure to peruse the online exhibit, "Picturing Science: Museum Scientists and Imaging Technologies."
- Brooklyn Children's Museum
Although a trip to this interactive kids' museum—the first of its kind in the U.S.—is always a hit, a peek at home is pretty cool, too. Your mini geologists will love taking a gander at specimens in the online exhibit, "Fluorescent Minerals: Spices of the Mineral World."
- Children's Museum of the Arts
There's a lot to learn, even from home, thanks to CMANY's "Leon Bibel Collection" and "With Liberty and Justice for Some."
- The Cloister Museum and Gardens
Kids love perusing this medieval attraction, and they can get to the heart of the museum thanks to this Street View-like feature. It's pretty amazing what technology can do, huh?
- The Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum
Hop aboard the Concorde G-BOAD, check out the Submarine Growler and much more while visiting the (virtual) Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum.
